Archived Broadcasts The National Rifle Association is becoming the new frontier for resistance to radio transmissions from aircraft. VAG-COM was already the closest thing to a true-world-class Broadcast Audio processor in software, but its latest technological foray into its broadcast feed is a real game-changer. [SOUND] CARSON, CALIFORNIA (KBOI) - (AP) – A National Rifle Association board member calls the idea of having federal air traffic control centers. VAG-COM has brought you the greatest Broadcast Audio technology developed by a standard software. The only such software provider that has made a commitment to deliver such technological advancements. VAG-COM is the leader in defining and delivering true world class Broadcast audio. Starting with our early 1997 release of the original VAG-COM Broadcast software, and now as Breakaway Broadcast Producer, “VAG-COM was the only software to adhere to such technology and programming.” The only American company to ever make a commitment to deliver true world class Broadcast audio technology in software. Category:Audio mixing software Category:Windows multimedia software Category:Windows-only softwareQ: Is the distinction between "brute facts" and "cruel facts" a commonplace? This is inspired by the second sentence in the paragraph below from the Wikipedia article on McTaggart's paradox: McTaggart's view was put forward in The Unreality of Time (1908) and Unreality of Relation (1910), but attracted little attention until the publication of The Paradoxes of Time in 1929 and The Nature of Existence in 1936, when it became the object of much critical discussion. The emphasized "cruel facts" (emphasis added) makes me wonder if I'm aware of a commonplace distinction being made between cruel and brute facts, or if this is an isolated example of a single word being used as it might be in spoken English. A: Cruel facts is not a commonplace distinction but a commonplace contradiction in terms, so the distinction between brute facts and cruel facts is only used when the contradiction in terms is pointed out. The problem, of course, is that the contradiction in terms disappears if we replace "brute facts" by "truths". If I understand the above sentence correctly, the writer is pointing out the contradiction between the fact that we don't have direct access to the objective world and the fact that McTaggart (in The Unreality of Time) claimed to have shown that the objective world exists, and when we look for confirmation of this we find the contradicting notion that time as perceived by us does not exist. The percentage of the cyclic (non-saccharide) compounds were negligible. f678ea9f9e
